

Jojo and Fi

TAKE THE SEA

by Anya Tisdale

This is the story of Jojo and Fi,
the best of sisters and friends as can be!

The two play and sit
by the sea.

They feel the sand, rocks, and waves; the things Jojo can't see.

One day Jojo says to Fi,
"Come on sis, let's explore the sea!"

"The sea!" shouts Fi.
Jojo says, "Yes, Follow me!"

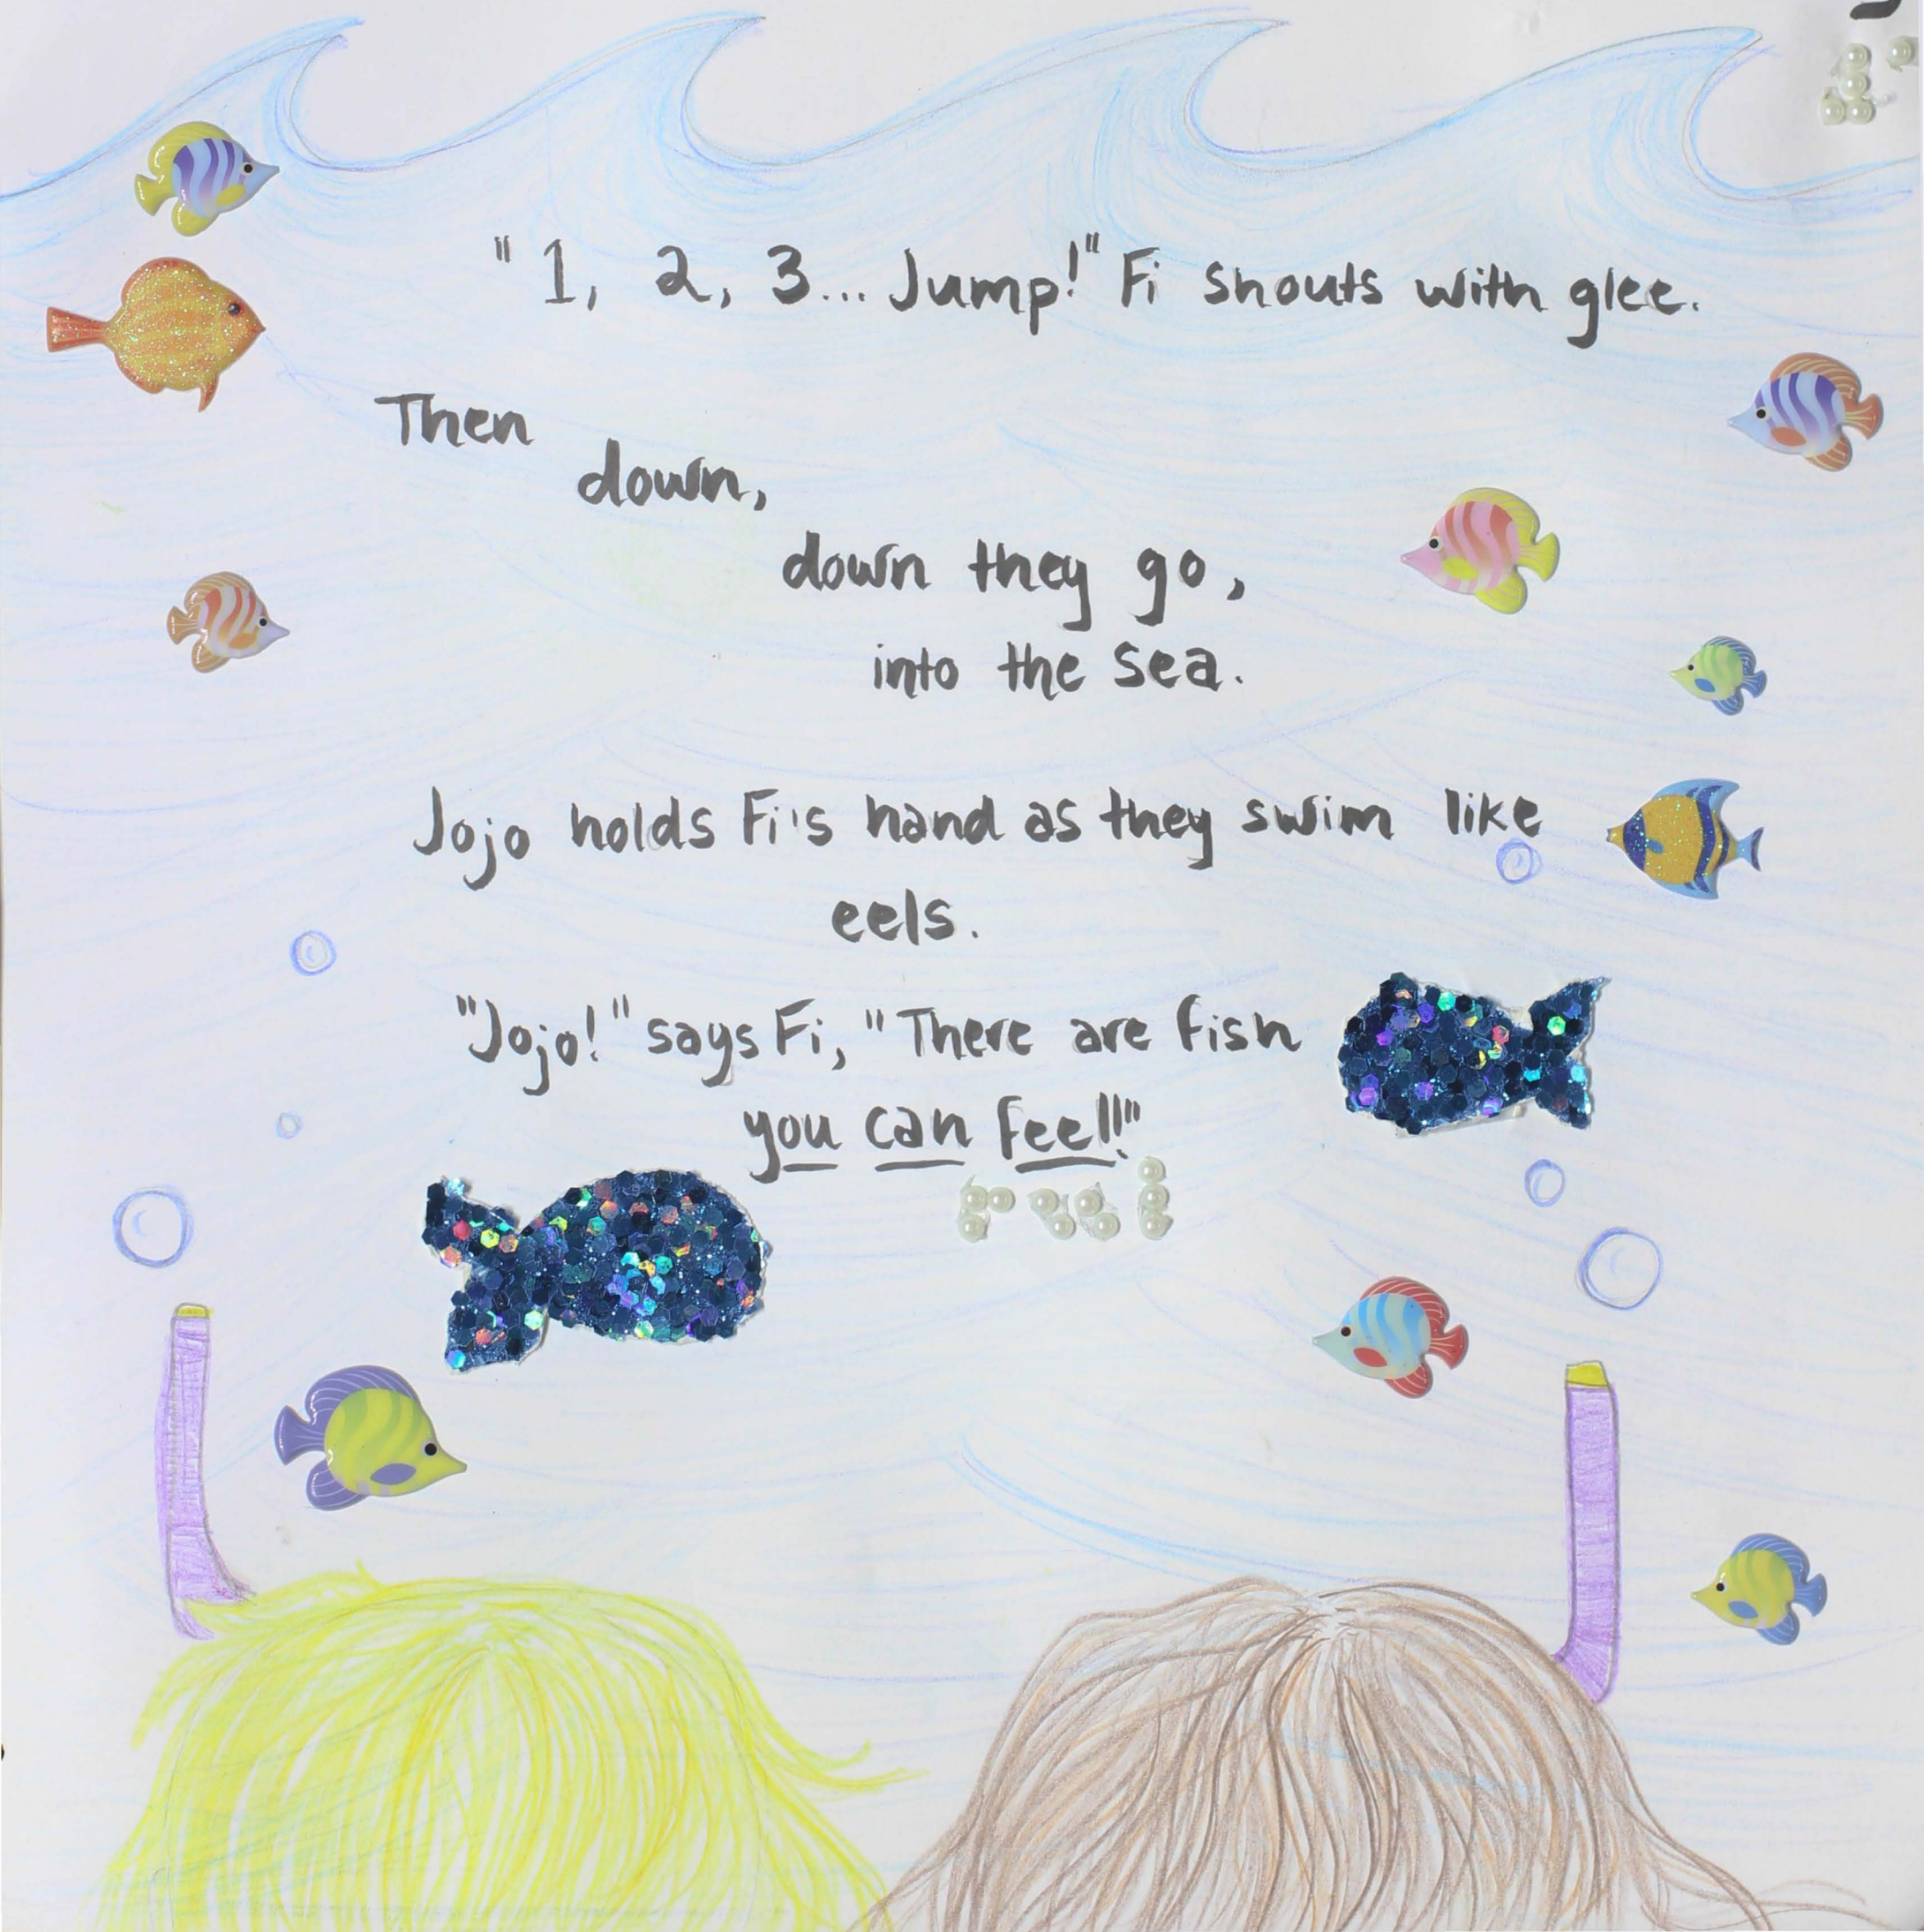

"1, 2, 3... Jump!" Fi shouts with glee.

Then down,
down they go,
into the sea.

Jojo holds Fi's hand as they swim like eels.

"Jojo!" says Fi, "There are fish
you can feel!"

Jojo leads the way, feeling the sand well.

Her hands brush the seafloor: "I think I feel shells!"

Fi feels the shells, then takes Jo's hand.

"Feel, Jo," she says.

"There are crabs and seastars on the sand!"

Jojo smiles wide,
but then starts to feel fear.

"The way the water is moving, something BIG is near!"

Her hand reaches out to something slippery and smooth, she hears a soft clicking and her fear is soothed.

"No need to be scared!" Jo says with cheer. "I feel a smooth body; I think a dolphin is here!"

"You're right!" says Fi, "what a great day!"
"Let's go!" smiles Jojo, "come swim and play!"

And the girls swim away, with their new ocean friends, before returning to shore, where their story would end

The End

